Amazing news this morning with QLD Health announcing that 0 immunised babies have been hospitalised with RSV in the Sunshine State since the introduction of an infant RSV immunisation program.

Thanks to this groundbreaking initiative, 7,500+ QLD babies have received #RSV (#RespiratorySyncytialVirus) immunisation, providing them with protection against the leading cause of hospitalisation in Australian infants.

Not a single RSV protected infant has needed hospital treatment for the virus since 25 April, showcasing the program's remarkable impact.

With RSV cases in Queensland soaring by 53% compared to last year, this program is a significant step in safeguarding babies, and something we hope to see supported on a national scale by next winter.

Infants in Queensland born after February 1, 2024, are eligible for the free RSV immunisation. We strongly encourage all eligible families to take advantage of this opportunity.

Let's Unite Against RSV to protect our little ones and ensure a healthier future for all Australian infants. Visit <https://lnkd.in/g5Nd3ZQv> for more details.
